The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Yoshimoto et al. Note column 7, lines 3-4 and Figure 6.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claim 2 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Yoshimoto et al. as applied to claim 1 above, and further in view of Higuchi et al.

Higuchi discloses the use of ceramic material as the main component of a hydrostatic gas bearing. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have as the material of the gas bearing a ceramic material as a main component, because Higuchi discloses the advantage of such a material, i.e., having a low coefficient of linear expansion.

Applicant's arguments filed August 15, 2005 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

With respect to claim 1, Applicant notes "Although Yoshimoto states in Col. 7, lines 3-4... that the depth of the air-in groove is 30 μ m, it does not teach or suggest the clearance height requirement or the five-fold relationship between the height of the clearance and the depth of the air groove of the instant claims.” However, the rejection, in addition to pointing to col. 7, lines 3-4 also pointed to Figure 6. Figure 6 clearly shows that the bearing discussed in col. 7, lines 3-4 has a bearing clearance no greater than $5\mu\text{m}$, thus within the range claimed. Moreover, with the groove depth being disclosed as $30\mu\text{m}$, the depth of the groove ($30\mu\text{m}$) to clearance (less than $5\mu\text{m}$) ratio mathematically anticipates the claimed range of at least 5.

With respect to the rejection of claim 2, Applicant states Higuchi “does not suggest using ceramics with low thermal expansion coefficient for the bearing of the present invention.” However, Higuchi does indeed suggest using ceramic material as the main component of a hydrostatic gas bearing. Applicant has not pointed out any error in the combination rejection of Yoshimoto in view of Higuchi.

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
